Arvind Karunakaran

Assistant Professor of Management Science & Engineering, Stanford University

An evidence-based voice on enterprise AI.

THINKERS50 RADAR  FACULTY AFFILIATE, STANFORD HAI  PHD, MIT SLOAN

Arvind's talks draw on years of fieldwork inside companies adopting AI, not forecasts, so they focus on what actually moves value and adoption: strategy, structure, roles, and metrics.

SIGNATURE FRAMEWORK

The Workflow Redesign Playbook

Redesigning work around AI with the people who do it

Teams map a workflow task by task, decide where AI should substitute for, augment, or expand the work, and then redesign roles, hand-offs, decision rights, and metrics with the people who do it, so the change holds after the pilot ends. It is the core of his in-house workshops with leadership teams.

FORMATS

Keynote, or a hands-on working session (half or full day) built around the team's own workflows

BEST FOR

COOs and transformation leaders, functional heads, HR and change leaders, in-house AI programs

SIGNATURE TALKS

KEYNOTE OR WORKING SESSION

01 Same Models, Different Results
Where lasting AI advantage comes from

02 Escaping Pilot Purgatory
Turning AI experiments into enterprise value

03 Stop Selling AI as a Productivity Tool
How leaders get people to embrace AI

FROM THE FIELD

In a study of nearly two years inside a law firm, the team whose manager framed AI as a way to enrich their jobs, and backed that up with time, training, and new metrics, pulled far ahead.

58% more use of the same AI tool

70% more experimentation with it
